WALTON IN FIGHT "TO THE FINISH"

Oklahoma Governor Issues Statement to the People.

HAS "CROSSED THE RUBICON"

Local Officials Admit at Military Inquiry That They Are or Were Members of the Klan—Legislators to Make Effort to Assemble in Capitol. Fiery Crosses Ordered Removed by the Governor.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 21.—Governor J. C. Walton addressed "to the citizens of Oklahoma and to the American people," a statement that he "has crossed the Rubicon" in his war against the invisible empire in Oklahoma and that from this hour on it is a fight to the finish.

Governor Walton supplemented his declaration with excerpts of testimony taken by the military court of inquiry from N. J. Jewett, grand dragon of the Klan, Oklahoma rearm; Judge Clark, dean of the Oklahoma judiciary; Sheriff Thomas Cavnar of Oklahoma City and County Attorney Wright.

It was the first intimation that the military court has questioned the grand dragon, the sheriff and Judge Clark. It is voluminous and shows by their own admissions that they are or were members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The statement which prefaces the transcript of evidence concludes with the passage that "Jewett and his invisible empire shall not pass in this state. If necessary, I shall arm every man in the state who is opposed to his empire."

Military reinforcements came to the capital to strengthen the "ring of steel" which the governor has drawn around the state house through his power as commander of the military during martial law.

By this move observers of the situation see physical confirmation of the governor's full determination to prevent by armed force convening of the house of representatives for the avowed purpose of instituting impeachment proceedings. "Extra troops are now being mobilized here and I do not propose to permit this unlawful and treasonable assembly," the governor declared today.

Solons to Meet.

The governor, in a proclamation, ordered fiery crosses, which have been erected in many cities since statewide martial law was declared Sunday, removed immediately. They are "pagan emblems of fear, hatred and rebellion," the governor said.

The first definite movement of the legislative branch of the government challenging the executive arm of Oklahoma came when half a dozen legislators sent out their call for assembly of the lower house of the legislature in the face of the governor's threat to use the military to prevent such a measure. It was said from their headquarters that the quorum was far in excess of the needed number.

There was every assurance of legislators that they would make a concerted effort to pass the military guard at the executive chambers and assemble in the hall of the lower house. This will be done to establish a precedent upon which they can base an appeal to the United States district court for a decision on their right to meet the governor. The state supreme court will not be asked for an opinion, it being held by the legislators that their assembly as a court of inquiry is superior to the supreme judiciary of the state.

For the first time in the war, the governor shows anxiety over finance. He calls upon "the people who believe in a representative form of government to immediately assist financially."

Governor Walton reiterates that "two governments can not exist in this state at the same time," and defines the issue as between the sovereignty of Oklahoma and the rule of the invisible empire.

He attacks state newspapers who oppose his methods and denies that the writ of habeas corpus has ever been suspended in Oklahoma, save in Tulsa county.

Health Test Planned.

Athens, O., Sept. 21.—Athens county health nurses will start a summer camp for the children with major defects who are found in the county-wide health tests to start next week. Five thousand children will be examined.

GIFT OF HENRY FORD

Chemical Engine Arrives at the Home of George Washington.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Henry Ford, while in Washington recently, visited Mt. Vernon. It was the first time he had ever seen the picturesque home where George Washington lived and died. The millionaire manufacturer showed a keen interest in the buildings and the priceless relics they contain. Then the practical side of his nature asserted itself. "What precautions have you against fire?" he asked. He was shown a row of red fire buckets, filled with water. Ford seemed deeply concerned at the thought of Mt. Vernon falling a prey to flame. Today a complete chemical engine, the last word in fire fighting apparatus, arrived in Mt. Vernon. It was the gift of the Detroit manufacturer.

YANKS CLINCH PENNANT

Defeat the Browns on Home Lot in First Game of Series.

New York, Sept. 21.—Back on their home lot after a western trip, the Yankees proceeded to clinch the American league pennant by defeating the St. Louis Browns 4 to 3. Sam Jones pitched the win for the Yankees. The Yankees can now lose all of their remaining games and the second place Cleveland Indians win all of theirs and the Yankees would still win the pennant by a half-game margin.

CHILD LABOR QUESTION UP

Legislation For Constitutional Amendment Urged.

GOMPERS CALLS ON COOLIDGE

Announces He Found President Receptive and in Entire Sympathy With the Effort to Restrict the Labor of Children—Eighteen National Women's Organizations Behind the Movement.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Legislation for a constitutional amendment to prohibit child labor was urged on President Coolidge by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Gompers called at the white house to discuss with the president legislation which labor regards as essential to the welfare of the public, and labor in particular. The child labor question was the only one taken up at the conference. Other subjects will be laid before the president in a brief to be submitted by Gompers.

Gompers said he found the president receptive and in entire sympathy with the effort to restrict the labor of children. He pointed to the fact that the president, while governor of Massachusetts, signed the state statute limiting the hours of work for children to 48 hours per week.

The labor chief called the president's attention to the fact that two child labor laws passed by congress had been declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court, and that the only avenue open for enactment of legislation that will hold is to amend the constitution.

Since the last supreme court decision, Gompers said, there has been a 36 per cent increase in child labor, according to statistics gathered by the federal department of labor. Eighteen national organizations of women, Gompers stated, have formed the national council for the abolition of child labor, which body has framed a constitutional amendment bill to be presented to the next congress. Attorneys have advised the council, he said, that no bill can be framed, in the face of the supreme court's rulings, without such an amendment first being adopted.

Gompers left today for Portland, Ore., where the annual convention of the federation opens Oct. 1. The preceding week the several departmental conventions will meet and on Sept. 29 the final meeting of the executive committee before the convention proper assemblies.

NEW MURDER MYSTERY IN LOS ANGELES

Police Quiz in Vain Infant Son of the Victim.

Los Angeles, Sept. 21.—Police quizzed in vain 2-year-old Robert Cass, hoping to gain from infantile lips the key which would unlock the mystery murder of the child's mother, Mrs. Ethel Cass, cafe entertainer.

Mrs. Cass' entirely nude body, in a pool of the young woman's blood, was discovered by a neighbor at the young matron's apartment. Who ever murdered the cafe charmer, it appears quite certain, the only person who was a witness to the deed must have been Baby Bobbie, who, weeping disconsolately from hunger, fright and loneliness, was found beside the cruelly maimed beautifully formed body. In fact it was the baby, crying tragically, that led to the discovery of the crime. This was when a neighbor, guided by its sobs, was led to the chamber.

Robbery was established as the crime motive when a fellow employee of the slain girl told the police Mrs. Cass, preparatory to returning to her home in Buffalo, had her money, about $1,000, concealed upon her person. But not a dollar of the money could be found in the apartment.

Columbus Woman Wins.

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—In the first game played in the women's tournament of the National Horseshoe Pitchers' association, Mrs. J. F. Francisco of Columbus, the present world's champion, easily defeated Mrs. Thomas Heenan by a score of 50 to 3.

Woodhull brought suit in United States court for judgment against the directors for the recovery of $200,000, alleged to have been earned over for conducting the business.

Eight-Year Term For M. E. Bishops.

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—Following extended debate in which the opinion was expressed that the government of the Methodist Episcopal church should be more Democratic, the Ohio conference adopted a memorial to the general conference favoring the election of bishops to a term of eight years instead of for life. The memorial provides that they may be re-elected. The vote was 103 for the memorial and 52 against it.

A. Gialdini of Youngstown, for $48,448.

SHIPPING BOARD PLAN WIPED OUT

Daugherty Hands Formal Opinion to Coolidge.

TWO ALTERNATIVES REMAIN

Government May Own and Operate Merchant Marine or Go Into the Open Market and Sell the Ships to the Highest Bidder — Shipping Board Declares It Will Intensify Its Operation.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The government can not dispose of its merchant marine through the so-called subsidiary corporation plan, the department of justice declared in a formal opinion handed to President Coolidge.

The decision leaves the government with two alternatives, it was stated. They are: First, active government ownership and operation of the merchant marine in competition with the fleets of the world; second, to go into the open market and sell the ships to the highest bidders at a huge loss on the original investment.

The first proposal, it was emphasized, had the approval of the late President Harding and his administration. Mr. Harding held that rather than sell the ships for a fraction of their worth, the government should operate them.

At the shipping board it was indicated that cash prices so far offered for ships are so unsatisfactory that no sales will be made and the government will intensify its operation. It was learned that the board already has worked out a comprehensive plan for government operation and is prepared to put it into effect if approved by President Coolidge. Chairman Farley and two members of the board are out of the city, but will return Tuesday so that a conference may be held and a decision reached.

The decision, written by Attorney General Daugherty, practically wipes out a plan evolved for the disposition of the fleet after two years of intensive study. It was based on the fact that the merchant marine act provides for the sale of ships and not an exchange of title for stock in a corporation, as proposed in the plan approved by the majority of the shipping board and known as the "Lasker-Farley plan."

The shipping board proposed that various state legislatures should charter corporations for the operation of fleets of the shipping board. Stock issued by these corporations was to be held by the board until earnings retired the stock, when the ships were to become the property of the corporations.

"It evidently was the intention of congress," Mr. Daugherty said, "to authorize a sale for cash or on credits not to exceed fifteen years from the making of the contract of sale and that an exchange whereby the government receives shares of stock in return for its ships is not a sale within the provision of the act and does not meet the condition limiting deferred payment. It must be admitted that under the present proposal the government will in a real and substantial sense part with its title to the vessels." Serious questions would arise through the assumption by the government of ownership of stock in a private corporation controlled by state law, it was added.

EXPERTS LOSE LIVES

Were Experimenting in Gasoline Conservation Work.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Two government experts were killed and seven others so seriously injured that physicians say they can not live, in an explosion of gasoline at the Bureau of Standards.

Logan L. Lauer of Lower Salem, Ohio, was killed instantly by the force of the blast and Hugh J. Cook of this city died at Emergency hospital several hours later. Joseph E. Kendig, Stephen N. Less and Henry K. Cummings all of this city, were so badly burned and injured that their lives are despaired of. The men were experimenting in gasoline conservation work, their activities being designed to effect a saving of 500,000,000 gallons annually to consumers of this country. As a result of the explosion and the wrecking of the plant, together with the loss of the men, this work will be at a standstill for several years. The laboratory was the only one in the world equipped for such work.

Bernard McCarthy, 38, of Painesville, O., died at Ashland, Ky. He was on his honeymoon.

URGES EXTRA SESSION

Massachusetts Solon Fears Anthracite Price Boosts This Fall.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Another request for an extra session of congress to deal with the coal question was made at the white house by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, who asserted that immediate federal legislation is necessary to protect the anthracite consuming public against exorbitant price raising. Already, he pointed out, since the Harrisburg wage agreement was entered into, there has been an advance of 7 cents a ton in anthracite prices. This, he declared, is just the beginning of what can be expected before the winter is over, unless there is price legislation to protect the public. He added: "It gets mighty cold in New England in December. There is no need to wait until December to take hold of a situation that should be taken hold of in October. While there is every prospect that the coal supply will be large, the price will be large also, unless steps are taken in time to check price advances. As the prices mount the quality will go down, even though the quantity does not."

Old Members Retained.

Dublin, Sept. 21.—President Cosgrave nominated his new cabinet. The new government retains all the old members, but in the reshuffle Ernest Blythe takes the financial ministry, which President Cosgrave formerly held. During the debate in the dail President Cosgrave warned the Independents and Laborites that they must play fair with the nation or be submerged.

Requisition Honored.

Columbus, Sept. 21.—Governor Donahy honored the request of Michigan authorities for the extradition of Leo Dantano and James Ciorio, under arrest at Cleveland and wanted at Mt. Clemens, Mich., on warrants charging abduction and unlawful imprisonment. Dantano and Ciorio were arrested Monday in Cleveland shortly after Dantano had married Miss Maria Yacobucci, 22, formerly of Cleveland.

MILLIONS IN GOLD TAKEN FROM TORPEDOED STEAMER

Divers Recover Nearly $35,000, 000 From the Laurentic.

London.—All except a few bars of the $30,000,000 worth of gold bullion which dropped to the ocean bed when a German submarine sank the Laurentic off Donegal, Ireland, have been recovered by divers who since 1918 have been carrying on their labors 90 feet below the surface of the sea. The 30 bars remaining in the wreck, it is expected, will be brought up within a fortnight.

In addition to the gold which was consigned to American bankers, the Laurentic was laden with almost $5,000,000 in silver specie, mostly in 2-shilling pieces, all of which has been salvaged by the divers. The men have been using a diving spear with a dial attached that shows whether the spear point is touching gold or a base metal such as iron.

The clocklike dial is kept aboard the salvaging ship and is connected with a spear which is in the hands of a diver working 90 feet below the surface. The hand moves to the left of the zero mark when the spear is prodded against a piece of iron, copper or other such metal; but when it touches gold the dial swings to the right. It veered further when it came in contact with an 18-carat bar than when it touched one of nine carats.

The apparatus was brought to the attention of the admiralty in 1920 by a college professor. Previous to that time the divers in three years of labor had recovered 608 bars, but since the galvanometer was brought into use more than 2,100 have been brought to the top, each bar being worth from $5,000 to $10,000, depending upon the standard of the gold and the size of the bar.

In the first years of the operation the divers sent up the treasures in the boxes in which they found them, but later these wooden chests rotted and the bars have since been salvaged separately.

The work of the divers, never very easy or safe, has been made harder by the activities of the hungry dog-fish which seem to think that they are watchdogs of the wreck.

Each diver carries with him when he goes below a large knife as a protection against any fish that gets too bold. Each man receives a thirty-second part of the treasure he recovers.

Youngest Auto Thief

Captured in Kenosha

Kenosha, Wis.—If Eau Claire has the youngest horse thief in the state, and Green Bay the youngest drunken auto driver, Kenosha claims the doubtful honor of having the youngest automobile thief. He is twelve-year-old Sam Salerno, whose career came to a speedy end here when he fortunately, or unfortunately, met with disaster as he launched it by stealing an automobile.

The lad on circus day here jumped into a touring car of Toerkel Pedersen, a farmer, and drove it pell mell from the circus. In his haste to put distance between him and the owner of the car he forgot all about speed laws and crashed into another automobile. The other car was badly damaged and young Sam was slightly injured.

What hurt him most, however, was that he was unable to get away with the stolen car and will be sent to the industrial school at Waukesha. He admitted to the judge of the Juvenile court that he had graduated from the class of bicycle stealing.

German Pilot Makes

Record Trip in Day

Berlin.—Berlin to London and back in one day was the record trip made recently by the German pilot, Pieper, engaged in the regular aerial service for mail and passengers.

Pieper arrived at Bremen via Hamburg on the outward flight at 11 o'clock in the morning, and an hour and a half later resumed the journey to Amsterdam and the English capital. By 6:20 in the afternoon, he was back in Bremen by the same route, and ten minutes later set out for Berlin.

Smallest Fish of All.

Probably the smallest fish in the world are to be found in Lake Buhl, in the mountains of the island of Luzon, in the Philippines. The natives call the fish the smarapan. It is the smallest vertebrate animal known to science, weighing only half a grain, and its maximum length is half an inch. Scientifically known as Mistichthys luzonensis, 3,500 of the minute species would weigh a pound. It would require 840,000,000 of them to equal in weight the 60 tons of the average blue whale.

Well, Isn't Cynic About Right?

The expression, "poor but honest," wasn't coined by a cynic. A cynic would have said "and therefore" instead of "but."

MOTHER

Who Made Greatest Sacrifice is Sought
by American Legion.

General Chauncey B. Baker, the new commander of the American Legion of Ohio, has issued the following letter and it is hoped that all will take heed to the subject of which he speaks and that everyone will co-operate to the end that the Ohio mother who has made the greatest sacrifice may receive proper recognition.

The letter sent out is as follows:

"The state of Ohio will pay the expense to the National Convention of the American War Mothers in Kansas City, Missouri, from September 29 to October 5, of the Ohio mother who sent the greatest number into the service in the late war and out of that number lost the most.

"The government of Ohio has asked the American Legion of Ohio to name the Ohio mother who made this greatest sacrifice. Accordingly, you are urged to take immediate steps to determine the mother in your community who, in your opinion, made the greatest sacrifice and write us immediately setting forth the details of her sacrifice together with her name and address.

"It is necessary that your nomination of the mother for this honor be in department headquarters not later than September 25th, next Tuesday. Please give this matter your immediate attention and report at once so that no one who merits the honor will be overlooked. Get immediate publicity in your local newspapers so that your entire community will know that you are making such a selection and so that the public of your community may feel free to call your attention to any mother of your community who would be eligible to such an honor. Be sure to get all available information regarding your nominee into our hands not later than next Tuesday.

"IT IS VERY IMPORTANT THAT A THOROUGH ENDEAVOR BE MADE IN EVERY COMMUNITY OF THE STATE ON THIS MATTER SO THAT NO MISTAKE WILL BE MADE. PLEASE LET US HAVE YOUR IMMEDIATE COOPERATION."

* Hotel Stenographer *

BY ROE FULKERSON

"I told you she was always looking for a new fellow," laughed the Hotel Stenographer. "Is she?" asked the House Detective.

"Indeed, I do not know," answered the girl. "Most girls are; I guess she is like the rest of them."

"But that is not fair or honorable," The House Detective had heavy reproof in his voice.

"But who said it was?" demanded the girl. "A woman is just like any other animal. Fighting for life, she uses any means to gain her point. Her husband is her life, or a sweetheart is her world. As both these must be a man you tell the truth when you say that men are women's lives and meal tickets.

"Any time any one tries to separate a girl from her sweetheart, he or she may expect to meet deceit, hair pulling and kitty-catting.

"Honor, fairness and honesty are in no woman's dictionary when her lover is involved. She will lie or throw stove-wood; bite in clinches or write anonymous letters; she will slander her rival or steer her to a bum dressmaker; she will make her talk if she is a fool; keep her quiet if that best serves her needs, and cultivate her friendships close enough to throw her harpoons into her back when she is not looking.

"Feeding a sick tiger melted butter with a pair of chopsticks is a pleasing and innocent occupation compared to trying to separate a woman from a guy whom she really loves, Kelly. Any time anybody asks me if I play fair with a friend when there is a fellow involved, I tell 'em don't, if it is necessary to win. When I like a man, I like him."

SHERIFF'S DEATH
RECALLS KILLINGS

Officer in the Bald Knobber
Country in Missouri Had Lively Career.

Forsyth, Mo.—The death of James Polk McHaffie, seventy-seven years old, former sheriff of Taney county, in a hospital in Springfield, has removed one of the real pioneers of the Ozarks, around whose life some of the most exciting events of this hill country were associated. He helped blaze a trail of civilization and had exciting experience with the Bald Knobbers, the terrors of southwest Missouri in the early days.

The life story of McHaffie, a picturesque character, is closely interwoven with the White river country.

McHaffie was born in Christian county, near Sparta, in 1846, when the line of that county extended to the Missouri-Arkansas boundary.

In 1884 McHaffie was elected sheriff of Taney county. At that time the Bald Knobbers were a power in the hill country and were one of the many problems which were presented to Sheriff McHaffie for solution. He had been elected because he was known to be fast on the draw and fearless. Both of these qualities were put to severe tests before McHaffie completed his period of office.

Adventure With Bald Knobbers.

Shortly before his death he told for the last time the story of an adventure with the Bald Knobbers. The sheriff said the Knobbers were originally organized for a good purpose, but later became dominated by men who encouraged outlawry.

It was during the administration of Sheriff McHaffie that Frank and Tubler Taylor were taken from the Forsyth jail and hanged by Bald Knobbers. The Taylors were known throughout the Ozark section for their escapades. One night they entered the store of John T. Dickerson at Forsyth and shot up the place. Dickerson was shot through the mouth and his wife was seriously wounded.

The offenders were apprehended and placed in the Taney county jail. That night the Bald Knobbers made their appearance. Sheriff McHaffie said there were approximately 150 men in the band. Several of the Knobbers leveled their weapons at the officer and ordered him to deliver the Taylor boys to them. McHaffie was forced to comply with this request, since the night riders had the drop on him.

The sheriff followed the trail of the Bald Knobbers after they left Forsyth and the next day found the bodies of the Taylor boys hanging from a tree. McHaffie said he had often been criticized for surrendering the prisoners, but stated that any other action would have been foolhardy.

John Bright Lynching.

The John Bright lynching occurred at Forsyth in the early 90s, after the Bald Knobbers had disbanded.

Bright was charged with having murdered his wife and was placed in the Forsyth jail, under the care of Sheriff McHaffie. One night a mob surrounded the jail. Sheriff McHaffie hid out with the keys. The fury of the mob increased when its members learned that McHaffie had gone away with the keys and then proceeded to force an entrance into the jail. Deputy Sheriff George Williams attempted to prevent the mob from breaking into the jail and was killed. Bright was taken out and hanged. Indignation swept over this section because of the killing of Deputy Williams.

Later a memorial public library was established here in honor of Deputy Williams, but now it is practically abandoned.

Portugal to Inaugurate
New President October 5

London.—When Senor Teixeira-Gomez was elected president of Portugal on August 6 he was still the Portuguese minister at London. He will not be inaugurated until October 5. He has represented his country at the Court of St. James since 1911, and consequently took part in the negotiations that brought Portugal into the World war. In an interview he said:

"One would think to read the news from Lisbon that they had a revolution there every eighth day. This is not so. There are, to be sure, dissensions and uncertainties. My policy will be, in the main, one of unification—an attempt to bring the conflicting parties together on the common basis of the welfare of the republic."

The new president has written books and collected curios. Until the revolution of 1910, which turned the monarchy into a republic, he lived on his parents' estates in the country. His grandfather had cherished liberal sentiments and had suffered for them. His father was educated in France, and from him the future president got his republicanism. Senor Gomez was dividing his time among farming, writing and collecting when the republic sent him to London as its first minister.

U. S. Has 178 Women Pastors.

Chicago.—There are 178 women ministers in the United States, according to figures from the International Association of Women Preachers. Illinois leads all other states with 33 women pastors, of whom 17 are in Chicago. There are six women preachers in foreign lands.

GERVISE YOUNG

Died at White Cross Hospital—Former Resident of This County.

Gervise Lynn Young, aged 45, died at White Cross hospital, Columbus, Thursday following an operation performed three weeks ago. He had been ill for two years and his condition becoming serious six months ago.

Mr. Young at the time of his death was foreman of the composing room of The Citizen, where he had been employed for the past nineteen years. Mr. Young at one time owned and published the New Holland Leader. Later he sold the paper and took employment in a job shop and later went to work on the Dispatch and then the Citizen.

The deceased was a member of the Typographical Union, the Maccabees, The Oaks and the Knights of Pythias of Columbus.

He married Miss Nellie Crall, sister of Prentice Crall, formerly of this city. His wife and three children survived. They are a son, Arno, and two daughters, Misses Ruth and Jeannette Young. Of his immediate family his mother, Mrs. Margaret Young, is living.

The funeral services will be held at his late home, 644 South 22d street, Columbus, Saturday at one o'clock. Interment will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery. The deceased was a nephew of Mrs. Ida Frey, of this city. She went to Columbus today to attend the funeral.

* HARTMAN THEATER *

Here is an opportunity not to be overlooked. George M. Cohan, the "Yankee Doodle Boy" author and producer of more great successes than any one genius of the theater in the world has a brand new one that is to be presented at the Hartman theater in Columbus the week of Monday, September 24.

His new production, which is to be seen in Columbus before sophisticated Broadway gets a glimpse of it, is "The Song and Dance Man" and George M. Cohan wrote it especially for his new star, Lyne Overman. It is safe to say that George has "put another winner across the plate" and Hartman patrons are among the very first to see it.

It is said that Cohan had the idea suggested by the title in mind for some time and originally expected to play it himself, but decided that Lyne Overman could better carry the character. Before he wrote a line of the script he engaged his full cast of players to support Overman with the result that each part is particularly adapted to the individual player engaged.

Much can be expected, therefore, from such sterling people as Overman, Frederick Perry, Will Deming, Louis Calhern, Robert Cummings, Eleanor Woodruff, Maye Methot, Laura Bennett and others.

The story of "The Song and Dance Man" is said to be unique in its style and plot. Mr. Cohan characterizes it as "an American comedy, but in keeping with the usual Cohan policy the doughty little producer does not wish to divulge the nature of the plot preferring to spring a complete surprise on his friends and admirers.

Mail orders should be sent to the Hartman boxoffice at once as the demand for reservations promises to be heavy. A Cohan offering is always an event of much note and in view of the fact that Columbus is to see it first even before the New York premiere the interest therein is of double intensity.

The engagement is for an entire week with the usual matinees.

TON LITTER

Eleven Pigs Entered by C. B. Teegardin
& Sons Weighed 2490 Pounds.

On Saturday, September 15, some 25 farmers were present to witness the weighing up of the Big Type Poland China litter of 11 pigs entered in the Ohio Ton Litter club by C. B. Teegardin & Sons of Madison township.

The litter weighed 2,490 pounds, being excellent in this county by the litter of Irvin Millar.

This record makes three litters in Madison township to have crossed the ton mark—a record which we believe will not be equaled by any other township in the state of Ohio.

Mr. Teegardin reported that the principal feeds during the first four months had been middlings, oats and semi-solid butter milk, while the last gains put on by the pigs were made on ground wheat, corn and semi-solid buttermilk. The question was asked of Mr. Teegardin whether it was a profitable business to force the pigs as fast as these had been forced and he replied that it would have paid him to have forced the other ninety pigs which he now has in the feed lot and while they are from one week to six weeks older than the ton litter, they average some 25 pounds less.

Mr. Teegardin sold his ton litter to go to a Columbus packing house for $9.10 per hundred weight and is of the opinion that his hogs now in the feed lot will be on the market after there has been a considerable decline in the price of hogs.

For the good of Circleville and every citizen in it hand in your subscription now to the Hinde Paper Box company.

A new Agnes Ayres has come to the motion picture screen.

A tantalizing, vivacious girl with golden bobbed hair, a flashing smile and sparkling eyes has taken the place of the serenely charming woman who starred in "The Daughter of Luxury" and "Borderland" the Paramount pictures.

In "Racing Hearts," a Paramount Picture which opened at the Met theater last night in which Miss Ayres is starred, she steps into an entirely new character. As the peppy, young daughter of an automobile manufacturer who is steadily going into bankruptcy she displays unusual enthusiasm.

"Racing Hearts" is unique for many reasons. First, because it serves to introduce this new Agnes Ayres to the screen. Second, because as the driver of a highpowered automobile in the thrilling race climax, she is the first woman of the screen to pilot a racing car in actual contest. In addition it again brings Miss Ayres and Theodore Roberts to the screen as daughter and father, the previous occasion having taken place three years ago during the production of "Too Much Speed," in which Wallace Reid starred for Paramount. Richard Dix, leading man, is excellent in his impersonation. The cast generally is high grade.

Personal Charm. Unselfishness is one of the keys to personal charm, which means good manners. The woman who would be a successful woman, a woman of charm, must be an unselfish woman. She must be unselfish in her own interests. She must repress natural instincts to be bad-tempered when she is tired, to retort sharply when contradicted on her own particular subjects. She must listen when she wants to talk, and she must never for one moment be off her guard in the world.—Exchange.

"Bonanza" Signifies Good Fortune. "Bonanza" is a Spanish word meaning "fair weather" or a "favoring wind." It is used in mining districts to signify an abundance of precious metal or rich ore. The miners of Comstock, a wonderful gold and silver mine in Nevada which yielded 340 million dollars worth of ore in thirty years, first used "bonanza" in this way. The word is now also used to signify any good fortune or successful enterprise.

Why Some Husbands Go Insane. A man went home the other evening and found his house locked up. After a deal of trouble he climbed in the window and found on the table a note from his wife. "I have gone to the movies," it read, "and you'll find the key on the side of the doorstep."

A RESTLESS CONSCIENCE

"Something" Warns You When You Are Putting Rate of Interest Ahead of Safety.

"I get more than five per cent on my money," says Neighbor Jones. "A good, safe investment so far."

Why the "so far?"

Because Jones knows, down in his heart, where the limits of absolute safety are set. He knows what precedent, experience and common consent have taught regarding a safe interest return.

When you deposit your money deposit it in conformance with the laws of precedent, experience and common consent and take no chances. Place it where your conscience tells you it is within every boundary of safety.

BOBBY

By JANE GORDON

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

HE WAS a sleek black cat, the companion and solace of his young mistress. Gay was the mistaken name her parents had given her, for gaiety of any kind was a rarity in the girl's life.

Hers the constant problem of making ends meet in the struggle for existence. But in her happy heart, for it was a happy heart, Gay carried a secret—the secret of a great ambition for which no sacrifice could be too much. In order to bring about this desired achievement Gay taught in a small town school.

Every week Gay put aside a part of her salary toward the trip abroad, which should, some day, lead to the road of fame.

In the morning when she climbed the crooked hill to the schoolhouse Bobby would follow. He liked to hide behind the bushes to jump out at her surprisingly. And when Gay returned in the afternoon—he seemed to know the hour of her coming and wait in the narrow hallway to greet her. But when the bell of the white church tolled in the valley Gay could not trust her pet to follow on to the house of worship. Bobby was piously inclined or he had not forgotten a soft-cushioned seat whereon he had napped, after seeking his adored one. Certain it was that though the black cat might be sent on his homeward way each morning, he could not be forced back on the Sabbath. So Gay locked him for safe keeping in the sunny room.

Every one knew Bobby; Barnes, the butcher, hoarded against the cat's coming choice bits of meat; the milliner kept for him a saucer of cream. When Gay at her piano practiced those sonatas which were one day to prove her talent, Bobby would jump up to walk boldly across the white keys. And when his mistress would ruthlessly push him aside, that was the beginning of a game.

On a certain morning she arose early to tint the old white organdie a delicate pink, in preparation for the event of the evening. It was through his friendship for the school principal that the great musician was coming to Lindenville to give a recital in the church. Gay had confided, in anticipation, her future ambition to the school principal that again he might use his influence in persuading this friend of his college days to pass judgment on her possible musical promise.

The principal, sharing her secret, intended to ask Grant Sinclair to give the young teacher a hearing. A grand piano had been placed on the church platform. Gay went, in joyous anticipation, to sit in the front of the auditorium.

Grant, pausing in his opening introduction, looked over the house for his inspiration. It was his custom to seek out a sympathetic listener, and in a manner play to that person. Tonight his gaze fell upon Gay's uplifted rapt face. He smiled as he turned back to the piano. Grant Sinclair began to play a spring song.

He had forgotten himself in the rendering, his audience listening breathlessly, then, rudely, it came to him—low, unmistakable laughter. The unaccountable thing continued.

Unconsciously, in his hurt indignation, he looked down at the girl. The blue eyes of Gay were wide with horror. Everyone knew Bobby and everyone must smile. She had forgotten that he would follow to church, and now she knew what was going to happen. The black cat, walking leisurely about the platform, would soon spring to the piano keys—which is exactly what Bobby did. The spring song was rudely broken. And when the affronted musician attempted to push the cat from before him, Bobby, with all the enjoyment of his favorite game, was swiftly back across the keys.

With a breathless rush, Gay was upon the platform, the cat in her arms.

"Sorry—sorry—" she murmured confusedly, and hurried out through the church door.

Later, at the home of the school principal, Grant Sinclair was called to the telephone. Gay, in the telephone booth of the corner drug store, repeated her abject regret. The musician's voice came back, cheerfully reassuring. "You are to give me a hearing in the church tomorrow at three," he told his troubled listener. Your principal has been telling me about you."

And when, the next day, Gay went diffidently toward him down the church aisle, the man whose skill was known and heralded, came forward to meet her. And when she had played for him he was kind. For he knew that though Gay could play, the master-touch would never be hers. So, to her, Grant Sinclair said:

"Go on, as you are doing. Teach your school, play when you will. I will send you music, and I will stop from time to time, when I am near, to mark your progress."

And it was not many months after when the musician walked at Gay's side, up the crooked hill.

"May it not temper your disappointment, dear one," Grant Sinclair said, "to know that you shall at least be the inspiration of your husband's music?"

"With you always near," Gay satisfyingly replied, "there can be no disappointment anywhere!"

English Guineas.
Guineas were minted first in 1663 out of gold brought from the Guinea coast. These bore the representation of an elephant on one side and were called guineas. Coins were issued to the value of one guinea, two guineas, five guineas, and half a guinea. At first the guinea was worth only twenty shillings, but as the silver coinage gradually deteriorated, in 1695 the guinea was worth thirty shillings. In 1698 its value fell to twenty-one and sixpence, and to twenty-one shillings in 1717, remaining at this figure until it disappeared from the coinage. The last guinea was coined in 1817, when the sovereign first made its appearance. It is still customary in Great Britain to estimate professional fees, prices of pictures, complimentary subscriptions, and so on, in guineas.

Worm Causes Heavier Losses Than Cholera

Biggest Part of the Damage Comes From Wasted Feed.

Swine raisers suffer greater loss from round worms than from hog cholera, according to the department of animal husbandry of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, but they do not attract so much attention because few hogs actually die from worms. The damage comes from the amount of feed wasted in feeding the worms and the loss of vitality of the animals. Many lung diseases, especially pneumonia, occur as the direct result of worms.

To combat the round worm successfully its life cycle should be thoroughly understood. Six to eight million eggs a year are laid by the female worm in the hog's intestines. The eggs come out with the manure, infecting every particle of food on the surface of the hog lot. They will survive most conditions for at least a year.

The eggs are swallowed by the pig in feeding and hatch in the intestines. The young worms then work their way through the walls of the intestines, and into the liver and blood stream, by which they are carried to the lungs. While in the lungs they may cause "thumps" or heavy breathing. Here they become active, crawl up the windpipe and cause coughing. Some are expelled from the mouth at this time, but most are swallowed and then remain permanently in the intestines.

Several treatments for worms may be followed:

Withhold feed from the hog for 24 hours and give a capsule containing two grains of santonin, three grains of aloin and eight grains of sodium bicarbonate. Do not feed for eight or ten hours after treatment, and then give one to two tablespoonfuls of epsom salts or glaser salts in the feed for every 100 pounds live weight of the hogs. One capsule is sufficient for a pig weighing up to 75 pounds.

If santonin cannot be procured, oil chenopodium, also known as "oil of worm seed" may be used. Four teaspoonfuls mixed with one ounce of castor oil is the usual dosage. The results will be most satisfactory if the oil is given alone rather than with the feed. Each pig should be fasted 24 hours before treatment.

If necessary, repeat the treatment in four to six weeks.

Late Built Houses May Cause Colds and Roup

Many poultrymen are finding that poultry houses built too late in the fall are apt to result in colds and roup.

Before the birds, especially pullets, are put in a new poultry house the floor as well as the lumber used in construction must be thoroughly dry. The essentials of a good poultry house are, dryness, as this prevents colds and roup; fresh air, which keeps the birds in good health; sunlight, nature's best disinfectant, and floor space so that during confinement the birds will have room to exercise.

For the best results a poultry house should be built for units of 200 birds. This requires a house 20 by 40 feet. It should face southward and should be located on high dry ground, and where it gets some shelter. Glass windows on the east and west sides with curtain windows in the front will allow all the sunlight and fresh air that the birds require.

Protection of the flock against daily and seasonal changes of weather and climate is the purpose of a poultry house.

High Feeding Value of Buttermilk and Products

The feeding value of buttermilk and buttermilk products, such as condensed or dried buttermilk, is not generally appreciated. At any rate, creameries are unable to get as much out of their buttermilk as its feeding value indicates they should be able to realize. Farmers who live close to the creamery at which they sell their cream sometimes take their own share of the buttermilk back home as a feed for hogs and chickens. They derive much value from the product, provided it is fed in an economical manner. Buttermilk is relatively rich in protein and its protein has a high feeding value because of its animal origin. For that reason, if it is supplied more liberally than it is needed for balancing the grain ration fed, part of it is wasted and, as a result, its full feeding value is not realized.

Pure Strain Selections of Tubers Are Superior

Cornell university plant breeders have found that pure-strain selections of potatoes are much superior to those ordinarily grown by farmers in New York. Plants of the pure strain, developed from a single tuber, produced 48 more bushels to the acre than seed potatoes selected by farmers in a two-year commercial test.

Disposing of Produce to Commission Merchant

Selling to commission merchants is the simplest method of disposing of the produce, as it does away with the expense and trouble involved in a private trade, but the returns are usually not so great, except when dealing with certain commission houses that have built up a fine trade along certain lines.

All Right for Seven Cents.

The neighbors said that Jake Newton was strictly honest but "pretty snug." One morning as he was having his sheep sheared he found that one of them was missing. "It must have jumped the fence and gone into Leslie's lot," he said to himself and immediately walked over to Leslie French's pasture, picked out a sheep that resembled his own and, after a tussle, got it home and had it sheared. A few days later Jake discovered his missing sheep dead in his pasture. He lost no time in seeking his neighbor. With profuse apologies he returned the sheep and the fleece and explained the whole affair. "Oh, that's all right, Jake," Leslie replied. "Don't let it trouble you a bit." "You're sure it's all right?" Jake asked anxiously. "Sure, sure, Jake. Anyone is likely to make a mistake." Jake drew himself up. "Well, it ought to be all right. I had to pay seven cents to have that sheep sheared."

Disagree Over Dollar Sign.

Writers are not agreed as to the origin of the sign "$" to represent dollars. Some say it came from the letters U. S., which after the adoption of the federal Constitution were prefixed to the federal currency, and which later, in the hurry of writing, were run into each other, the U being made first and the S over it. The more probable explanation is that it is a modification of the figure 8 and denotes a piece of eight reals, or the dollar, which formerly was divided into eight parts. It was then designated by the figures 8-S.

WHEAT SOWING

Planting Should be at Late Date Because of Hessian Fly

Altho farmers of Pickaway county have generally followed the safe sowing date for wheat to avoid Hessian fly, an inspection of a number of fields this spring by T. H. Parks state entomologist, showed that 1% of the wheat was infested with Hessian fly an amount sufficient to spread to every field in the county this fall, unless the safe sowing date is observed. September 29 is the date given as being the safe date for Pickaway county.

Because of the late season and the difficulty in getting corn cut, it is doubtful if many farmers will be ready to sow their wheat before that date. One field in a community sown early may become infested with the Hessian fly and the second brood the following spring may travel three to five miles to neighboring fields, causing an entire community to become infested. Everyone should observe this sowing date not only as a safeguard to themselves, but to their whole community.

The Magic Square.

The origin of the magic square is usually ascribed to the Chinese as the Yih King, an early classic, describes it. The magic square was known to the Hindoos and to the Arabian astrologers.

GIRAFFE IS TARGET

How Humorists Pick on Maligned Animal.

Not Satisfied After Artists Have Colored Him to Suit Backgrounds.

America has never known a native giraffe, scientists say, though it is admitted that an American parrot was once found and is still preserved, stuffed. Yet the giraffe is rapidly becoming a native American by adoption, and its long neck and remarkable complexion is attaining something of a vogue among the new artists.

In fact, this African animal, with his fondness for the salad in diet, has furnished man with proofs and problems and picture book illustrations since he was first found nibbling a plantain leaf, and it is not strange that at last the artists should seize upon him to use him as the pinnacle of their new color endeavor. His popularity is growing, with something of the speed his neck shows when he begins life on this earth.

How the giraffe got his long neck does not interest the artists. They are busy making him strange colors. One artist recently painted him on a vivid green background, in dull orange, with large black sections cut out to represent hexagonal spots. The matter of tail was slightly different from Darwin's remarks on the subject. Not that it mattered. A picture must have balance. So this giraffe wore a tall long and graceful and flowing like the gowns at a kingly coronation and, somehow, one felt that such an animal would make the wilds of Africa really colorful and exciting and worthy of a long trip in the heat.

The artists are not the only ones now finding the giraffe one of our most diverting animals. The writers are also picking him off and turning him to account. George Bernard Shaw in his "Back to Methuselah" discusses this matter of the long neck and the giraffe and seems to lean to the theory that after all the leaves on the lower branches of the trees had been eaten, the animals with the longest necks got the food higher up and that starvation gradually eliminated the short-necked ones, and thus the animal kept growing a longer and longer neck, by natural selection.

The theory, of course, doesn't matter so much. But it is rather painful to find this noble animal also the butt of the humorists. Literature may take him, art may mispaint him, but it seems pitiful that humorists are choosing him to compare him to bottles and other extinct phenomena.

There is something ingenious about the giraffe. Those long forelegs are ungainly and give him an air of helplessness. A certain sculptor has taken advantage of this unfortunate variation of nature and has put heads on his two forehoofs, leaving only the neck reaching up and absorbing luscious leaves. Saidre carried to this extent seems a little ungracious in view of this animal's great service to the human race in the theory of evolution.

Not since the camel's coming to help the cartoonists in the problem of prohibition, has an animal done more modern service than has the giraffe. The camel was used to bearing burdens. His humps were provided for that aeons ago. That the burden was a moral one did not matter. But the giraffe is different. There is a delicacy about him. There is something brutal in this sudden attention. —New York Sun and Globe.

Uses for Paper.

Paper has other uses than the common ones for printing purposes, stationery, wrapping parcels, magazines, books, etc. Some of these uses are as important in themselves as the common uses, but none of these approach the latter in the quantity of material consumed. However, these odd uses are of considerable interest. In the electrical industry paper has been used for making insulations of all sorts. In the manufacture of machinery it has been used to make packings for gas engines and hydraulic work, in making calendar rolls, car wheels, pulleys, etc. Articles of every-day use such as spoons, dishes, cups and saucers, suitcases, trunks, table covers and napkins, bags of all descriptions, flowers, wall paper, etc., are made from paper. Paper garments have been known for some time, and in the shoe industry paper is used for making box toes, counters, heel board, etc.

Bacteria Good and Bad.

As a class bacteria probably form a community with the greatest reputation for evil and probably they deserve it least. They are blamed for almost every form of disease and yet, as among ourselves, the useful members outnumber the criminal by many thousands to one. So closely in appearance do the good bacteria resemble the wicked ones that often it is impossible to distinguish one from the other. They are all very low forms of plant life and work by generating complex "enzymes" which bring about chemical changes. Scientists consider bacteria to be as necessary to human life as air and water! Nature has no greater scavengers for they transform dead bodies and plants by the process popularly known as decay into suitable foods for living plants. They are coming more and more into prominence in industrial process and the expert bacteriologist finds an increased demand for his services.—Loudon Mail.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN THERE?

Tell me, my dear, have you ever been out

With a guy with that college bred air,

The guy with the tortoise shell glasses and cane,

And the glue on his plastered back hair,

The guy who spouts Milton's and Tennyson's stuff

With inflections aesthetic and rare. While he toys with his handkerchief up in his cuff.

Oh girls—have you ever been there?

Your heart may be set on a gay little dance,

But the prune takes you out for a walk,

For dances, he's found, are positive death

Of all intellectual talk.

Or you long for a ripping good musical show

With laughter to drive away care And he takes you to something by Shakespeare, you know

Oh girls—have you ever been there?

Then home in the moonlight he walks by your side,

Talking botany, civics and Greek, And your heart goes along for rugged old Jim

Who knew much better pieces to speak,

And you stop at the gate where there isn't much light

And romance fills the soft balmy air.

And the boob lifts his hat

And says simply "Good night."

Oh girls—have you ever been there? —Lord Jeff.

WALTON IN FIGHT "TO THE FINISH"

Oklahoma Governor Issues Statement to the People.

HAS "CROSSED THE RUBICON"

Local Officials Admit at Military Inquiry That They Are or Were Members of the Klan—Legislators to Make Effort to Assemble in Capitol. Fiery Crosses Ordered Removed by the Governor.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 21.—Governor J. C. Walton addressed "to the citizens of Oklahoma and to the American people," a statement that he "has crossed the Rubicon" in his war against the invisible empire in Oklahoma and that from this hour on it is a fight to the finish.

Governor Walton supplemented his declaration with excerpts of testimony taken by the military court of inquiry from N. J. Jewett, grand dragon of the Klan, Oklahoma realm; Judge Clark, dean of the Oklahoma judiciary; Sheriff Thomas Cavanar of Oklahoma City and County Attorney Wright.

It was the first intimation that the military court has questioned the grand dragon, the sheriff and Judge Clark. It is voluminous and shows by their own admissions that they are or were members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The statement which prefaces the transcript of evidence concludes with the passage that "Jewett and his invisible empire shall not pass in this state. If necessary, I shall arm every man in the state who is opposed to his empire."

Military reinforcements came to the capital to strengthen the "ring of steel" which the governor has drawn around the state house through his power as commander of the military during martial law.

By this move observers of the situation see physical confirmation of the governor's full determination to prevent by armed force convening of the house of representatives for the avowed purpose of instituting impeachment proceedings. "Extra troops are now being mobilized here and I do not propose to permit this unlawful and treasonable assembly," the governor declared today.

Solons to Meet.

The governor, in a proclamation, ordered fiery crosses, which have been erected in many cities since statewide martial law was declared Sunday, removed immediately. They are "pagan emblems of fear, hatred and rebellion," the governor said.

The first definite movement of the legislative branch of the government challenging the executive arm of Oklahoma came when half a dozen legislators sent out their call for assembly of the lower house of the legislature in the face of the governor's threat to use the military to prevent such a measure. It was said from their headquarters that the quorum was far in excess of the needed number.

There was every assurance of legislators that they would make a concerted effort to pass the military guard at the executive chambers and assemble in the hall of the lower house. This will be done to establish a precedent upon which they can base an appeal to the United States district court for a decision on their right to meet the governor. The state supreme court will not be asked for an opinion, it being held by the legislators that their assembly as a court of inquiry is superior to the supreme judiciary of the state.

For the first time in the war, the governor shows anxiety over finance. He calls upon "the people who believe in a representative form of government to immediately assist financially."

Governor Walton reiterates that "two governments can not exist in this state at the same time," and defines the issue as between the sovereignty of Oklahoma and the rule of the invisible empire.

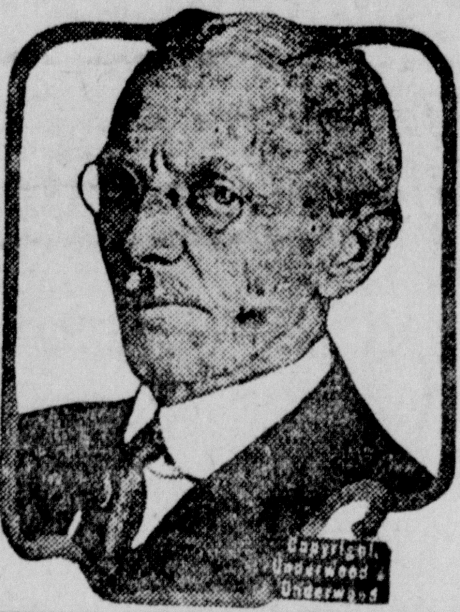

He attacks state newspapers who oppose his methods and denies that the writ of habeas corpus has ever been suspended in Oklahoma, save in Tulsa county.

Health Test Planned.

Athens, O., Sept. 21.—Athens county health nurses will start a summer camp for the children with major defects who are found in the county-wide health tests to start next week. Five thousand children will be examined.

GIFT OF HENRY FORD

Chemical Engine Arrives at the Home of George Washington.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Henry Ford, while in Washington recently, visited Mt. Vernon. It was the first time he had ever seen the picturesque home where George Washington lived and died. The millionaire manufacturer showed a keen interest in the buildings and the priceless relics they contain. Then the practical side of his nature asserted itself. "What precautions have you against fire?" he asked. He was shown a row of red fire buckets, filled with water. Ford seemed deeply concerned at the thought of Mt. Vernon falling a prey to flame. Today a complete chemical engine, the last word in fire fighting apparatus, arrived in Mt. Vernon. It was the gift of the Detroit manufacturer.

YANKS CLINCH PENNANT

Defeat the Browns on Home Lot in First Game of Series.

New York, Sept. 21.—Back on their home lot after a western trip, the Yankees proceeded to clinch the American league pennant by defeating the St. Louis Browns 4 to 3. Sam Jones pitched the win for the Yankees. The Yanks can now lose all of their remaining games and the second place Cleveland Indians win all of theirs and the Yanks would still win the pennant by a half-game margin.

CHILD LABOR QUESTION UP

Legislation For Constitutional Amendment Urged.

GOMPERS CALLS ON COOLIDGE

Announces He Found President Receptive and in Entire Sympathy With the Effort to Restrict the Labor of Children—Eighteen National Women's Organizations Behind the Movement.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Legislation for a constitutional amendment to prohibit child labor was urged on President Coolidge by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Gompers called at the white house to discuss with the president legislation which labor regards as essential to the welfare of the public, and labor in particular. The child labor question was the only one taken up at the conference. Other subjects will be laid before the president in a brief to be submitted by Gompers.

Gompers said he found the president receptive and in entire sympathy with the effort to restrict the labor of children. He pointed to the fact that the president, while governor of Massachusetts, signed the state statute limiting the hours of work for children to 48 hours per week.

The labor chief called the president's attention to the fact that two child labor laws passed by congress had been declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court, and that the only avenue open for enactment of legislation that will hold is to amend the constitution.

Since the last supreme court decision, Gompers said, there has been a 36 per cent increase in child labor, according to statistics gathered by the federal department of labor. Eighteen national organizations of women, Gompers stated, have formed the national council for the abolition of child labor, which body has framed a constitutional amendment bill to be presented to the next congress. Attorneys have advised the council, he said, that no bill can be framed, in the face of the supreme court's rulings, without such an amendment first being adopted.

Gompers left today for Portland, Ore., where the annual convention of the federation opens Oct. 1. The preceding week the several departmental conventions will meet and on Sept. 29 the final meeting of the executive committee before the convention proper assemblies.

NEW MURDER MYSTERY IN LOS ANGELES

Police Quiz in Vain Infant Son of the Victim.

Los Angeles, Sept. 21.—Police quizzed in vain 2-year-old Robert Cass, hoping to gain from infantile lips the key which would unlock the mystery murder of the child's mother, Mrs. Ethel Cass, cafe entertainer.

Mrs. Cass' entirely nude body, in a pool of the young woman's blood, was discovered by a neighbor at the young matron's apartment. Who ever murdered the cafe charmer, it appears quite certain, the only person who was a witness to the deed must have been Baby Bobbie, who, weeping disconsolately from hunger, fright and loneliness, was found beside the cruelly maimed beautifully formed body. In fact it was the baby, crying tragically, that led to the discovery of the crime. This was when a neighbor, guided by its sobs, was led to the chamber.

Robbery was established as the crime motive when a fellow employee of the slain girl told the police Mrs. Cass, preparatory to returning to her home in Buffalo, had her money, about $1,000, concealed upon her person. But not a dollar of the money could be found in the apartment.

Columbus Woman Wins.

Woodhull brought suit in United States court for judgment against the directors for the recovery of $200,000, alleged to have been turned over for conducting the business.

Eight-Year Term For M. E. Bishops.

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—Following extended debate in which the opinion was expressed that the government of the Methodist Episcopal church should be more Democratic, the Ohio conference adopted a memorial to the general conference favoring the election of bishops to a term of eight years instead of for life. The memorial provides that they may be re-elected. The vote was 103 for the memorial and 52 against it.

SHIPPING BOARD PLAN WIPED OUT

Daugherty Hands Formal Opinion to Coolidge.

TWO ALTERNATIVES REMAIN

Government May Own and Operate Merchant Marine or Go Into the Open Market and Sell the Ships to the Highest Bidder — Shipping Board Declares It Will Intensify Its Operation.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The government can not dispose of its merchant marine through the so-called subsidiary corporation plan, the department of justice declared in a formal opinion handed to President Coolidge.

The decision leaves the government with two alternatives, it was stated. They are: First, active government ownership and operation of the merchant marine in competition with the fleets of the world; second, to go into the open market and sell the ships to the highest bidders at a huge loss on the original investment.

The first proposal, it was emphasized, had the approval of the late President Harding and his administration. Mr. Harding held that rather than sell the ships for a fraction of their worth, the government should operate them.

At the shipping board it was indicated that cash prices so far offered for ships are so unsatisfactory that no sales will be made and the government will intensify its operation. It was learned that the board already has worked out a comprehensive plan for government operation and is prepared to put it into effect if approved by President Coolidge. Chairman Farley and two members of the board are out of the city, but will return Tuesday so that a conference may be held and a decision reached.

The decision, written by Attorney General Daugherty, practically wipes out a plan evolved for the disposition of the fleet after two years of intensive study. It was based on the fact that the merchant marine act provides for the sale of ships and not an exchange of title for stock in a corporation, as proposed in the plan approved by the majority of the shipping board and known as the "Lasker-Farley plan."

The shipping board proposed that various state legislatures should charter corporations for the operation of fleets of the shipping board. Stock issued by these corporations was to be held by the board until earnings retired the stock, when the ships were to become the property of the corporations.

"It evidently was the intention of congress," Mr. Daugherty said, "to authorize a sale for cash or on credits not to exceed fifteen years from the making of the contract of sale and that an exchange whereby the government receives shares of stock in return for its ships is not a sale within the provision of the act and does not meet the condition limiting deferred payment. It must be admitted that under the present proposal the government will in a real and substantial sense part with its title to the vessels." Serious questions would arise through the assumption by the government of ownership of stock in a private corporation controlled by state law, it was added.

EXPERTS LOSE LIVES

Were Experimenting in Gasoline Conservation Work.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Two government experts were killed and seven others so seriously injured that physicians say they can not live, in an explosion of gasoline at the Bureau of Standards.

Logan L. Lauer of Lower Salem, Ohio, was killed instantly by the force of the blast and Hugh J. Cook of this city died at Emergency hospital several hours later. Joseph E. Kendig, Stephen N. Less and Henry K. Cummings all of this city, were so badly burned and injured that their lives are despaired of. The men were experimenting in gasoline conservation work, their activities being designed to effect a saving of 500,000,000 gallons annually to consumers of this country. As a result of the explosion and the wrecking of the plant, together with the loss of the men, this work will be at a standstill for several years. The laboratory was the only one in the world equipped for such work.

Bernard McCarthy, 38, of Painesville, O., died at Ashland, Ky. He was on his honeymoon.

URGES EXTRA SESSION

Massachusetts Solon Fears Anthracite Price Boosts This Fall.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Another request for an extra session of congress to deal with the coal question was made at the white house by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, who asserted that immediate federal legislation is necessary to protect the anthracite consuming public against exorbitant price raising. Already, he pointed out, since the Harrisburg wage agreement was entered into, there has been an advance of 7 cents a ton in anthracite prices. This, he declared, is just the beginning of what can be expected before the winter is over, unless there is price legislation to protect the public. He added: "It gets mighty cold in New England in December. There is no need to wait until December to take hold of a situation that should be taken hold of in October. While there is every prospect that the coal supply will be large, the price will be large also, unless steps are taken in time to check price advances. As the prices mount the quality will go down, even though the quantity does not."

Old Members Retained.

Dublin, Sept. 21.—President Cosgrave nominated his new cabinet. The new government retains all the old members, but in the reshuffle Ernest Blythe takes the financial ministry, which President Cosgrave formerly held. During the debate in the dail President Cosgrave warned the Independents and Laborites that they must play fair with the nation or be submerged.

Clemens, Mich., on warrants charging abduction and unlawful imprisonment. Dantano and Cicorio were arrested Monday in Cleveland shortly after Dantano had married Miss Maria Yacobucci, 22, formerly of Cleveland.

MILLIONS IN GOLD TAKEN FROM TORPEDOED STEAMER

Divers Recover Nearly $35,000, 000 From the Laurentic.

London.—All except a few bars of the $30,000,000 worth of gold bullion which dropped to the ocean bed when a German submarine sank the Laurentic off Donegal, Ireland, have been recovered by divers who since 1918 have been carrying on their labors 90 feet below the surface of the sea. The 30 bars remaining in the wreck, it is expected, will be brought up within a fortnight.

In addition to the gold which was consigned to American bankers, the Laurentic was laden with almost $5,000,000 in silver specie, mostly in 2-shilling pieces, all of which has been salvaged by the divers. The men have been using a diving spear with a dial attached that shows whether the spear point is touching gold or a base metal such as iron.

The clocklike dial is kept aboard the salvaging ship and is connected with a spear which is in the hands of a diver working 90 feet below the surface. The hand moves to the left of the zero mark when the spear is prodded against a piece of iron, copper or other such metal; but when it touches gold the dial swings to the right. It veered further when it came in contact with an 18-carat bar than when it touched one of nine carats.

The apparatus was brought to the attention of the admiralty in 1920 by a college professor. Previous to that time the divers in three years of labor had recovered 608 bars, but since the galvanometer was brought into use more than 2,100 have been brought to the top, each bar being worth from $5,000 to $10,000, depending upon the standard of the gold and the size of the bar.

In the first years of the operation the divers sent up the treasures in the boxes in which they found them, but later these wooden chests rotted and the bars have since been salvaged separately.

The work of the divers, never very easy or safe, has been made harder by the activities of the hungry dog-fish which seem to think that they are watchdogs of the wreck.

Each diver carries with him when he goes below a large knife as a protection against any fish that gets too bold. Each man receives a thirty-second part of the treasure he recovers.

Youngest Auto Thief Captured in Kenosha

Kenosha, Wis.—If Ean Claire has the youngest horse thief in the state, and Green Bay the youngest drunken auto driver, Kenosha claims the doubtful honor of having the youngest automobile thief. He is twelve-year-old Sam Salerno, whose career came to a speedy end here when he fortunately, or unfortunately, met with disaster as he launched it by stealing an automobile.

The lad on circus day here jumped into a touring car of Toerkel Pedersen, a farmer, and drove it pell mell from the circus. In his haste to put distance between him and the owner of the car he forgot all about speed laws and crashed into another automobile. The other car was badly damaged and young Sam was slightly injured.

What hurt him most, however, was that he was unable to get away with the stolen car and will be sent to the industrial school at Waukesha. He admitted to the judge of the Juvenile court that he had graduated from the class of bicycle stealing.

German Pilot Makes Record Trip in Day

Berlin.—Berlin to London and back in one day was the record trip made recently by the German pilot, Pieper, engaged in the regular aerial service for mail and passengers.

Pieper arrived at Bremen via Hamburg on the outward flight at 11 o'clock in the morning, and an hour and a half later resumed the journey to Amsterdam and the English capital. By 6:20 in the afternoon, he was back in Bremen by the same route, and ten minutes later set out for Berlin.

Smallest Fish of All.

Probably the smallest fish in the world are to be found in Lake Buhl, in the mountains of the island of Luzon, in the Philippines. The natives call the fish the smarapan. It is the smallest vertebrate animal known to science, weighing only half a grain, and its maximum length is half an inch. Scientifically known as Misticthys luzonensis, 3,500 of the minute species would weigh a pound. It would require 840,000,000 of them to equal in weight the 60 tons of the average blue whale.

Well, Isn't Cynic About Right?
The expression, "poor but honest," wasn't coined by a cynic. A cynic would have said "and therefore" instead of "but."

MOTHER

Who Made Greatest Sacrifice is Sought by American Legion.

General Chauncey B. Baker, the new commander of the American Legion of Ohio, has issued the following letter and it is hoped that all will take heed to the subject of which he speaks and that everyone will co-operate to the end that the Ohio mother who has made the greatest sacrifice may receive proper recognition.

The letter sent out is as follows:

"The state of Ohio will pay the expense to the National Convention of the American War Mothers in Kansas City, Missouri, from September 29 to October 5, of the Ohio mother who sent the greatest number into the service in the late war and out of that number lost the most.

"The government of Ohio has asked the American Legion of Ohio to name the Ohio mother who made this greatest sacrifice. Accordingly, you are urged to take immediate steps to determine the mother in your community who, in your opinion, made the greatest sacrifice and write us immediately setting forth the details of her sacrifice together with her name and address.

"It is necessary that your nomination of the mother for this honor be in department headquarters not later than September 25th, next Tuesday. Please give this matter your immediate attention and report at once so that no one who merits the honor will be overlooked. Get immediate publicity in your local newspapers so that your entire community will know that you are making such a selection and so that the public of your community may feel free to call your attention to any mother of your community who would be eligible to such an honor. Be sure to get all available information regarding your nominee into our hands not later than next Tuesday.

"IT IS VERY IMPORTANT THAT A THOROUGH ENDEAVOR BE MADE IN EVERY COMMUNITY OF THE STATE ON THIS MATTER SO THAT NO MISTAKE WILL BE MADE. PLEASE LET US HAVE YOUR IMMEDIATE COOPERATION."

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"I told you she was always looking for a new fellow," laughed the Hotel Stenographer. "Is she?" asked the House Detective.

"Indeed, I do not know," answered the girl. "Most girls are; I guess she is like the rest of them."

"But that is not fair or honorable," The House Detective had heavy reproach in his voice.

"But who said it was?" demanded the girl. "A woman is just like any other animal. Fighting for life, she uses any means to gain her point. Her husband is her life, or a sweetheart is her world. As both these must be a man you tell the truth when you say that men are women's lives and meal tickets.

"Anytime any one tries to separate a girl from her sweetheart, he or she may expect to meet deceit, hair pulling and kitty-catting.

"Honor, fairness and honesty are in no woman's dictionary when her lover is involved. She will lie or throw stovewood; bite in clinches or write anonymous letters; she will slander her rival or steer her to a bum dressmaker; she will make her talk if she is a fool; keep her quiet if that best serves her needs, and cultivate her friendships close enough to throw the harpoon into her back when she is not looking.

"Feeding a sick tiger melted butter with a pair of chopsticks is a pleasing and innocent occupation compared to trying to separate a woman from a guy whom she really loves. Kelly. Anytime anybody asks me if I play fair with a friend when there is a fellow involved, I tell 'em don't, if it is necessary to win. When I like a man, I like him."

SHERIFF'S DEATH
RECALLS KILLINGS

Officer in the Bald Knobber Country in Missouri Had Lively Career.

Forsyth, Mo.—The death of James Polk McHaffie, seventy-seven years old, former sheriff of Taney county, in a hospital in Springfield, has removed one of the real pioneers of the Ozarks, around whose life some of the most exciting events of this hill country were associated. He helped blaze a trail of civilization and had exciting experience with the Bald Knobbers, the terrors of southwest Missouri in the early days.

The life story of McHaffie, a picturesque character, is closely interwoven with the White river country.

McHaffie was born in Christian county, near Sparta, in 1846, when the line of that county extended to the Missouri-Arkansas boundary.

In 1884 McHaffie was elected sheriff of Taney county. At that time the Bald Knobbers were a power in the hill country and were one of the many problems which were presented to Sheriff McHaffie for solution. He had been elected because he was known to be fast on the draw and fearless. Both of these qualities were put to severe tests before McHaffie completed his period of office.

Adventure With Bald Knobbers. Shortly before his death he told for the last time the story of an adventure with the Bald Knobbers. The sheriff said the Knobbers were originally organized for a good purpose, but later became dominated by men who encouraged outlawry.

It was during the administration of Sheriff McHaffie that Frank and Tuller Taylor were taken from the Forsyth jail and hanged by Bald Knobbers. The Taylors were known throughout the Ozark section for their escapades. One night they entered the store of John T. Dickerson at Forsyth and shot up the place. Dickerson was shot through the mouth and his wife was seriously wounded.

The offenders were apprehended and placed in the Taney county jail. That night the Bald Knobbers made their appearance. Sheriff McHaffie said there were approximately 150 men in the band. Several of the Knobbers leveled their weapons at the officer and ordered him to deliver the Taylor boys to them. McHaffie was forced to comply with this request, since the night riders had the drop on him.

The sheriff followed the trail of the Bald Knobbers after they left Forsyth and the next day found the bodies of the Taylor boys dangling from a tree. McHaffie said he had often been criticized for surrendering the prisoners, but stated that any other action would have been foolhardy.

John Bright Lynching. The John Bright lynching occurred at Forsyth in the early 90s, after the Bald Knobbers had disbanded.

Bright was charged with having murdered his wife and was placed in the Forsyth jail, under the care of Sheriff McHaffie. One night a mob surrounded the jail. Sheriff McHaffie hid out with the keys. The fury of the mob increased when its members learned that McHaffie had gone away with the keys and then proceeded to force an entrance into the jail. Deputy Sheriff George Williams attempted to prevent the mob from breaking into the jail and was killed. Bright was taken out and hanged. Indignation swept over this section because of the killing of Deputy Williams.

Later a memorial public library was established here in honor of Deputy Williams, but now it is practically abandoned.

Portugal to Inaugurate
New President October 5

London.—When Senor Teixeira-Gomez was elected president of Portugal on August 6 he was still the Portuguese minister at London. He will not be inaugurated until October 5. He has represented his country at the Court of St. James since 1911, and consequently took part in the negotiations that brought Portugal into the World war. In an interview he said:

"One would think to read the news from Lisbon that they had a revolution there every eighth day. This is not so. There are, to be sure, dissensions and uncertainties. My policy will be, in the main, one of unification—an attempt to bring the conflicting parties together on the common basis of the welfare of the republic."

The new president has written books and collected curios. Until the revolution of 1910, which turned the monarchy into a republic, he lived on his parents' estates in the country. His grandfather had cherished liberal sentiments and had suffered for them. His father was educated in France, and from him the future president got his republicanism. Senor Gomez was dividing his time among farming, writing and collecting when the republic sent him to London as its first minister.

U. S. Has 178 Women Pastors.

Chicago.—There are 178 women ministers in the United States, according to figures from the International Association of Women Preachers. Illinois leads all other states with 33 women pastors, of whom 17 are in Chicago. There are six women preachers in foreign lands.

GERVISE YOUNG

Died at White Cross Hospital—Former Resident of This County.

Gervise Lynn Young, aged 45, died at White Cross hospital, Columbus, Thursday following an operation performed three weeks ago. He had been ill for two years and his condition becoming serious six months ago.

Mr. Young at the time of his death was foreman of the composing room of The Citizen, where he had been employed for the past nineteen years. Mr. Young at one time owned and published the New Holland Leader. Later he sold the paper and took employment in a job shop and later went to work on the Dispatch and then the Citizen.

The deceased was a member of the Typographical Union, the Maccabees, The Oaks and the Knights of Pythias of Columbus.

He married Miss Nellie Crall, sister of Prentice Crall, formerly of this city. His wife and three children survive. They are a son, Arno, and two daughters, Misses Ruth and Jeannette Young. Of his immediate family his mother, Mrs. Margaret Young, is living.

The funeral services will be held at his late home, 644 South 22d street, Columbus, Saturday at one o'clock. Interment will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery. The deceased was a nephew of Mrs. Ida Frey, of this city. She went to Columbus today to attend the funeral.

HARTMAN THEATER

Here is an opportunity not to be overlooked, George M. Cohan, the "Yankee Doodle Boy" author and producer of more great successes than any one genius of the theater in the world has a brand new one that is to be presented at the Hartman theater in Columbus the week of Monday, September 24.

His new production, which is to be seen in Columbus before sophisticated Broadway gets a glimpse of it, is "The Song and Dance Man" and George M. Cohan wrote it especially for his new star, Lynne Overman. It is safe to say that George has "put another winner across the plate" and Hartman patrons are among the very first to see it.

It is said that Cohan had the idea suggested by the title in mind for some time and originally expected to play in it himself, but decided that Lynne Overman could better carry the character. Before he wrote a line of the script he engaged his full cast of players to support Overman with the result that each part is particularly adapted to the individual player engaged.

Much can be expected, therefore, from such sterling people as Overman, Frederick Perry, Will Deming, Louis Calhern, Robert Cummings, Eleanor Woodruff, Maye Methot, Laura Bennett and others.

The story of "The Song and Dance Man" is said to be unique in its style and plot. Mr. Cohan characterizes it as "an American comedy, but in keeping with this usual Cohan policy the doughty little producer does not wish to divulge the nature of the plot preferring to spring a complete surprise on his friends and admirers.

Mail orders should be sent to the Hartman boxoffice at once as the demand for reservations promises to be heavy. A Cohan offering is always an event of much note and in view of the fact that Columbus is to see it first even before the New York premiere the interest therein is of double intensity.

The engagement is for an entire week with the usual matinees.

The great industry James J. Hinde built at Sandusky and other cities prospered because of liberal wages.

TON LITTER

Eleven Pigs Entered by C. B. Teegardin & Sons Weighed 2490 Pounds.

On Saturday, September 15, some 25 farmers were present to witness the weighing up of the Big Type Poland China litter of 11 pigs entered in the Ohio Ton Litter club by C. B. Teegardin & Sons of Madison township.

The litter weighed 2,490 pounds, being excelled in this county by the litter of Irvin Millar.

This record makes three litters in Madison township to have crossed the ton mark—a record which we believe will not be equaled by any other township in the state of Ohio.

Mr. Teegardin reported that the principal feeds during the first four months had been middlings, oats and semi-solid butter milk, while the last gains put on by the pigs were made on ground wheat, corn and semi-solid buttermilk. The question was asked of Mr. Teegardin whether it was a profitable business to force the pigs as fast as these had been forced and he replied that it would have paid him to have forced the other ninety pigs which he now has in the feed lot and while they are from one week to six weeks older than the ton litter, they average some 25 pounds less.

Mr. Teegardin sold his ton litter to go to a Columbus packing house for $9.10 per hundred weight and is of the opinion that his hogs now in the feed lot will be on the market after there has been a considerable decline in the price of hogs.

For the good of Circleville and every citizen in it hand in your subscription now to the Hinde Paper Box company.

AMUSEMENTS

A new Agnes Ayres has come to the motion picture screen.

A tantalizing, vivacious girl with golden bobbed hair, a flashing smile and sparkling eyes has taken the place of the serenely charming woman who starred in "The Daughter of Luxury" and "Borderland" the Paramount pictures.

In "Racing Hearts," a Paramount Picture which opened at the Met theater last night in which Miss Ayres is starred, she steps into an entirely new character. As the peppy, young daughter of an automobile manufacturer who is steadily going into bankruptcy she displays unusual enthusiasm.

"Racing Hearts" is unique for many reasons. First, because it serves to introduce this new Agnes Ayres to the screen. Second, because as the driver of a highpowered automobile in the thrilling race climax, she is the first woman of the screen to pilot a racing car in actual contest. In addition it again brings Miss Ayres and Theodore Roberts to the screen as daughter and father, the previous occasion having taken place three years ago during the production of "Too Much Speed," in which Wallace Reid starred for Paramount. Richard Dix, leading man, is excellent in his impersonation. The cast generally is high grade.

Unselfishness is one of the keys to personal charm, which means good manners. The woman who would be a successful woman, a woman of charm, must be an unselfish woman. She must be unselfish in her own interests. She must repress natural instincts to be bad-tempered when she is tired, to retort sharply when contradicted on her own particular subjects. She must listen when she wants to talk, and she must never for one moment be off her guard in the world.—Exchange.

"Bonanza" Signifies Good Fortune. "Bonanza" is a Spanish word meaning "fair weather" or a "favoring wind." It is used in mining districts to signify an abundance of precious metal or rich ore. The miners of Comstock Lode, a wonderful gold and silver mine in Nevada which yielded 340 million dollars worth of ore in thirty years, first used "bonanza" in this way. The word is now also used to signify any good fortune or successful enterprise.

Why Some Husbands Go Insane. A man went home the other evening and found his house locked up. After a deal of trouble he climbed in the window and found on the table a note from his wife. "I have gone to the movies," it read, "and you'll find the key on the side of the doorstep."

A RESTLESS CONSCIENCE

"Something" Warns You When You Are Putting Rate of Interest Ahead of Safety.

"I get more than five per cent on my money," says Neighbor Jones. "A good, safe investment so far."

Why the "so far?"

Because Jones knows, down in his heart, where the limits of absolute safety are set. He knows what precedent, experience and common consent have taught regarding a safe interest return.

When you deposit your money deposit it in conformance with the laws of precedent, experience and common consent and take no chances. Place it where your conscience tells you it is within every boundary of safety.

BOBBY

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

HE WAS a sleek black cat, the companion and solace of his young mistress. Gay was the mistaken name her parents had given her, for gaiety of any kind was a rarity in the girl's life.

Hers the constant problem of making ends meet in the struggle for existence. But in her happy heart, for it was a happy heart, Gay carried a secret—the secret of a great ambition for which no sacrifice could be too much. In order to bring about this desired achievement Gay taught in a small town school.

Every week Gay put aside a part of her salary toward the trip abroad, which should, some day, lead to the road of fame.

In the morning when she climbed the crooked hill to the schoolhouse Bobby would follow. He liked to hide behind the bushes to jump out at her surprisingly. And when Gay returned in the afternoon—he seemed to know the hour of her coming and wait in the narrow hallway to greet her. But when the bell of the white church tolled in the valley Gay could not trust her pet to follow on to the house of worship. Bobby was plausibly inclined or he had not forgotten a soft-cushioned seat whereon he had napped, after seeking his adored one. Certain it was that though the black cat might be sent on his homeward way each morning, he could not be forced back on the Sabbath. So Gay locked him for safe keeping in the sunny room.

Every one knew Bobby; Barnes, the butcher, hoarded against the cat's coming choice bits of meat; the milliner kept for him a saucer of cream.

When Gay at her piano practiced those sonatas which were one day to prove her talent, Bobby would jump up to walk boldly across the white keys. And when his mistress would ruthlessly push him aside, that was the beginning of a game.

On a certain morning she arose early to tint the old white organdie a delicate pink, in preparation for the event of the evening. It was through his friendship for the school principal that the great musician was coming to Lindenville to give a recital in the church. Gay had confided, in anticipation, her future ambition to the school principal that again he might use his influence in persuading this friend of his college days to pass judgment on her possible musical promise.

The principal, sharing her secret, intended to ask Grant Sinclair to give the young teacher a hearing. A grand piano had been placed on the church platform. Gay went, in joyous anticipation, to sit in the front of the auditorium.

Grant, pausing in his opening introduction, looked over the house for his inspiration. It was his custom to seek out a sympathetic listener, and in a manner play to that person. Tonight his gaze fell upon Gay's uplifted rapt face. He smiled as he turned back to the piano. Grant Sinclair began to play a spring song.

He had forgotten himself in the rendering, his audience listening breathlessly, then, rudely, it came to him—low, unmistakable laughter. The unaccountable thing continued.

Unconsciously, in his hurt indignation, he looked down at the girl. The blue eyes of Gay were wide with horror. Everyone knew Bobby and everyone must smile. She had forgotten that he would follow to church, and now she knew what was going to happen. The black cat, walking leisurely about the platform, would soon spring to the piano keys—which is exactly what Bobby did. The spring song was rudely broken. And when the affronted musician attempted to push the cat from before him, Bobby, with all the enjoyment of his favorite game, was swiftly back across the keys.

With a breathless rush, Gay was upon the platform, the cat in her arms.

"Sorry—sorry—" she murmured confusedly, and hurried out through the church door.

Later, at the home of the school principal, Grant Sinclair was called to the telephone. Gay, in the telephone booth of the corner drug store, repeated her abject regret. The musician's voice came back, cheerfully reassuring. "You are to give me a hearing in the church tomorrow at three," he told his troubled listener. Your principal has been telling me about you."

And when, the next day, Gay went diffidently toward him down the church aisle, the man whose skill was known and heralded, came forward to meet her. And when she had played for him he was kind. For he knew that though Gay could play, the master-touch would never be hers. So, to her, Grant Sinclair said:

"Go on, as you are doing. Teach your school, play when you will. I will send you music, and I will stop from time to time, when I am near, to mark your progress."

And it was not many months after when the musician walked at Gay's side, up the crooked hill.

"May it not temper your disappointment, dear one," Grant Sinclair said, "to know that you shall at least be the inspiration of your husband's music?"

"With you always near," Gay satisfyingly replied, "there can be no disappointment anywhere!"

English Guineas.

Guineas were minted first in 1663 out of gold brought from the Guinea coast. These bore the representation of an elephant on one side and were called guineas. Coins were issued to the value of one guinea, two guineas, five guineas, and half a guinea. At first the guinea was worth only twenty shillings, but as the silver coinage gradually deteriorated, in 1695 the guinea was worth thirty shillings. In 1698 its value fell to twenty-one and sixpence, and to twenty-one shillings in 1717, remaining at this figure until it disappeared from the coinage. The last guinea was coined in 1817, when the sovereign first made its appearance. It is still customary in Great Britain to estimate professional fees, prices of pictures, complimentary subscriptions, and so on, in guineas.

Worm Causes Heavier Losses Than Cholera

Biggest Part of the Damage Comes From Wasted Feed.

Swine raisers suffer greater loss from round worms than from hog cholera, according to the department of animal husbandry of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, but they do not attract so much attention because few hogs actually die from worms. The damage comes from the amount of feed wasted in feeding the worms and the loss of vitality of the animals. Many lung diseases, especially pneumonia, occur as the direct result of worms.

To combat the round worm successfully its life cycle should be thoroughly understood. Six to eight million eggs a year are laid by the female worm in the hog's intestines. The eggs come out with the manure, infecting every particle of food on the surface of the hog lot. They will survive most conditions for at least a year.

The eggs are swallowed by the pig in feeding and hatch in the intestines. The young worms then work their way through the walls of the intestines, and into the liver and blood stream, by which they are carried to the lungs. While in the lungs they may cause "thumps" or heavy breathing. Here they become active, crawl up the windpipe and cause coughing. Some are expelled from the mouth at this time, but most are swallowed and then remain permanently in the intestines.

Several treatments for worms may be followed:

Withhold feed from the hog for 24 hours and give a capsule containing two grains of santonin, three grains of aloin and eight grains of sodium bicarbonate. Do not feed for eight or ten hours after treatment, and then give one to two tablespoonfuls of epsom salts or glauber salts in the feed for every 100 pounds live weight of the hogs. One capsule is sufficient for a pig weighing up to 75 pounds.

If santonin cannot be procured, oil chenopodium, also known as "oil of worm seed" may be used. Four teaspoonfuls mixed with one ounce of castor oil is the usual dosage. The results will be most satisfactory if the oil is given alone rather than with the feed. Each pig should be fasted 24 hours before treatment.

If necessary, repeat the treatment in four to six weeks.

Late Built Houses May Cause Colds and Roup

Many poultrymen are finding that poultry houses built too late in the fall are apt to result in colds and roup.

Before the birds, especially pullers, are put in a new poultry house the floor as well as the lumber used in construction must be thoroughly dry. The essentials of a good poultry house are, dryness, as this prevents colds and roup; fresh air, which keeps the birds in good health; sunlight, nature's best disinfectant, and floor space so that during confinement the birds will have room to exercise.

For the best results a poultry house should be built for units of 200 birds. This requires a house 20 by 40 feet. It should face southward and should be located on high dry ground, and where it gets some shelter. Glass windows on the east and west sides with curtain windows in the front will allow all the sunlight and fresh air that the birds require.

Protection of the flock against daily and seasonal changes of weather and climate is the purpose of a poultry house.

High Feeding Value of Buttermilk and Products

The feeding value of buttermilk and buttermilk products, such as condensed or dried buttermilk, is not generally appreciated. At any rate, creameries are unable to get as much out of their buttermilk as its feeding value indicates they should be able to realize. Farmers who live close to the creamery at which they sell their cream sometimes take their own share of the buttermilk back home as a feed for hogs and chickens. They derive much value from the product, provided it is fed in an economical manner. Buttermilk is relatively rich in protein and its protein has a high feeding value because of its animal origin. For that reason, if it is supplied more liberally than it is needed for balancing the grain ration fed, part of it is wasted and, as a result, its full feeding value is not realized.

Pure Strain Selections of Tubers Are Superior

Cornell university plant breeders have found that pure-strain selections of potatoes are much superior to those ordinarily grown by farmers in New York. Plants of the pure strain, developed from a single tuber, produced 48 more bushels to the acre than seed potatoes selected by farmers in a two-year commercial test.

Disposing of Produce to Commission Merchant

Selling to commission merchants is the simplest method of disposing of the produce, as it does away with the expense and trouble involved in a private trade, but the returns are usually not so great, except when dealing with certain commission houses that have built up a fine trade along certain lines.

All Right for Seven Cents.

The neighbors said that Jake Newton was strictly honest but "pretty snug." One morning as he was having his sheep sheared he found that one of them was missing. "It must have jumped the fence and gone into Leslie French's pasture, picked out a sheep that resembled his own and, after a tussle, got it home and had it sheared. A few days later Jake discovered his missing sheep dead in his pasture. He lost no time in seeking his neighbor. With profuse apologies he returned the sheep and the fleece and explained the whole affair. "Oh, that's all right, Jake," Leslie replied. "Don't let it trouble you a bit." "You're sure it's all right?" Jake asked anxiously. "Sure, sure, Jake. Anyone is likely to make a mistake," Jake drew himself up. "Well, it ought to be all right. I had to pay seven cents to have that sheep sheared."

WHEAT SOWING

Planting Should be at Late Date Because of Hessian Fly

Altho farmers of Pickaway county have generally followed the safe sowing date for wheat to avoid Hessian fly, an inspection of a number of fields this spring by T. H. Parks state entomologist, showed that 1% of the wheat was infested with Hessian fly an amount sufficient to spread to every field in the county this fall, unless the safe sowing date is observed. September 29 is the date given as being the safe date for Pickaway county.

Because of the late season and the difficulty in getting corn cut, it is doubtful if many farmers will be ready to sow their wheat before that date. One field in a community sown early may become infested with the Hessian fly and the second brood the following spring may travel three to five miles to neighboring fields, causing an entire community to become infested. Everyone should observe this sowing date not only as a safeguard to themselves, but to their whole community.

GIRAFFE IS TARGET

How Humorists Pick on Maligned Animal.

Not Satisfied After Artists Have Colored Him to Suit Backgrounds.

America has never known a native giraffe, scientists say, though it is admitted that an American parrot was once found and is still preserved, stuffed. Yet the giraffe is rapidly becoming a native American by adoption, and its long neck and remarkable complexion is attaining something of a vogue among the new artists.

In fact, this African animal, with his fondness for the salad in diet, has furnished man with proofs and problems and picture book illustrations since he was first found nibbling a plantain leaf, and it is not strange that at last the artists should seize upon him to use him as the pinnacle of their new color endeavor. His popularity is growing with something of the speed his neck shows when he begins life on this earth.

How the giraffe got his long neck does not interest the artists. They are busy making him strange colors. One artist recently painted him on a vivid green background, in dull orange, with large black sections cut out to represent hexagonal spots. The matter of tail was slightly different from Darwin's remarks on the subject. Not that it mattered. A picture must have balance. So this giraffe wore a tall long and graceful and flowing like the gowns at a kingly coronation and, somehow, one felt that such an animal would make the wilds of Africa really colorful and exciting and worthy of a long trip in the heat.

The artists are not the only ones now finding the giraffe one of our most diverting animals. The writers are also picking him off and turning him to account. George Bernard Shaw in his "Back to Methuselah" discusses this matter of the long neck and the giraffe and seems to lean to the theory that after all the leaves on the lower branches of the trees had been eaten, the animals with the longest necks got the food higher up and that starvation gradually eliminated the short-necked ones, and thus the animal kept growing a longer and longer neck, by natural selection.

The theory, of course, doesn't matter so much. But it is rather painful to find this noble animal also the butt of the humorists. Literature may take him, art may mispaint him, but it seems pitiful that humorists are choosing him to compare him to bottles and other extinct phenomena.

There is something ingenious about the giraffe. Those long forelegs are ungainly and give him an air of helplessness. A certain sculptor has taken advantage of this unfortunate variation of nature and has put heads on his two forehoofs, leaving only the neck reaching up and absorbing luscious leaves. Saïre carried to this extent seems a little ungracious in view of this animal's great service to the human race in the theory of evolution.

Not since the camel's coming to help the cartoonists in the problem of prohibition, has an animal done more modern service than has the giraffe. The camel was used to bearing burdens. His humps were provided for that aeons ago. That the burden was a moral one did not matter. But the giraffe is different. There is a delicacy about him. There is something brutal in this sudden attention. —New York Sun and Globe.

Uses for Paper.

Paper has other uses than the common ones for printing purposes, stationery, wrapping parcels, magazines, books, etc. Some of these uses are as important in themselves as the common uses, but none of these approach the latter in the quantity of material consumed. However, these odd uses are of considerable interest. In the electrical industry paper has been used for making insulations of all sorts. In the manufacture of machinery it has been used to make packings for gas engines and hydraulic work, in making calendar rolls, car wheels, pulleys, etc. Articles of every-day use such as spoons, dishes, cups and saucers, suitcases, trunks, table covers and napkins, bags of all descriptions, flowers, wall paper, etc., are made from paper. Paper garments have been known for some time, and in the shoe industry paper is used for making box toes, counters, heel board, etc.

Bacteria Good and Bad.

As a class bacteria probably form a community with the greatest reputation for evil and probably they deserve it least. They are blamed for almost every form of disease and yet, as among ourselves, the useful members outnumber the criminal by many thousands to one. So closely in appearance do the good bacteria resemble the wicked ones that often it is impossible to distinguish one from the other. They are all very low forms of plant life and work by generating complex "enzymes" which bring about chemical changes. Scientists consider bacteria to be as necessary to human life as air and water! Nature has no greater scavengers for they transform dead bodies and plants by the process popularly known as decay into suitable foods for living plants. They are coming more and more into prominence in industrial process and the expert bacteriologist finds an increased demand for his services.—Loudon Mail.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN THERE?

Tell me, my dear, have you ever been out
With a guy with that college bred air,
The guy with the tortoise shell glasses and cane,
And the glue on his plastered back hair,
The guy who spouts Milton's and Tennyson's stuff
With inflections aesthetic and rare.
While he toys with his handkerchief up in his cuff.
Oh girls—have you ever been there?

Your heart may be set on a gay little dance,
But the prune takes you out for a walk,
For dances, he's found, are positive death
Of all intellectual talk.
Or you long for a ripping good musical show
With laughter to drive away care
And he takes you to something by Shakespeare, you know
Oh girls—have you ever been there?

Then home in the moonlight he walks by your side,
Talking botany, civics and Greek,
And your heart goes alonging for rugged old Jim
Who knew much better pieces to speak,
And you stop at the gate where there isn't much light
And romance fills the soft balmy air,
And the boob lifts his hat
And says simply "Good night."
Oh girls—have you ever been there?
—Lord Jeff.
